

Diversity/Careers in Engineering & Information Technology

Technical Workforce and Supplier Diversity

December 2014

Marc Berman, president of service-disabled veteran-owned small business Vector. His company has been honored for its work by two staffing associations.

SDVOSB Vector receives awards from two top staffing associations for dedication to diverse IT talent

Vienna, VA – Vector Technical Resources, a service-disabled veteran owned IT staffing firm, received two awards in October from top staffing associations, Staffing Industry Analysts (SIA) and the American Staffing Association (ASA).

Vector joins the 2014 list of the nation's top diversity staffing firms that have received awards from the SIA. This year's list includes 176 firms that represent women-owned, minority-owned, veteran-owned and HUBZone businesses that provide a variety of clients with IT talent.

Vector also received an honorable mention from the ASA during its 2014 Staffing Voice award ceremony, which honors staffing companies' communications efforts. Vector was recognized for its work in the media relations category.

"We are honored to be acknowledged by the SIA and ASA," said Marc Berman, Vector's president. "These recognitions are a testament to Vector's ongoing expertise and dedication to provide top talent to private and public entities in the Washington, DC region."

The company recently sponsored SmartCEO magazine's Washington, DC GovStar awards program. The program took place in November and honored Washington, DC government contractors for technology innovation, workplace environment, growth, veteran support and contributions to the industry and the marketplace.

Founded in 2007, service-disabled veteran owned small business (SDVOSB) Vector provides small to mid-size government contractors and commercial entities with top IT and professional talent on a contract, contract-to-hire or direct hire basis. D/C